Why are you the best candidate for the job?

What distinguishes you from your competitors?

JUSTIN MCNEAL

I am running for the United States Senate because I believe South Dakota deserves a Senator who is accountable to the people; not to party leadership, special interests, or political insiders. My life has been defined by service, discipline, and a commitment to doing what is right, not what is easy. As a United States Navy veteran, a business owner, and a man of faith, I bring real-world experience and a results-driven mindset to this race.

What makes me the best candidate is simple: I am willing to show up, listen, and fight for South Dakotans every single day. I am not running on promises. I am running on a record of service and a commitment to lead with integrity, transparency, and strength. I understand the challenges facing working families, small businesses, and rural communities because I have lived them. I will take that perspective to Washington and ensure South Dakota's voice is heard and respected.

I stand out from my competitors in both approach and accountability. This campaign is built from the ground up, powered by the people—not handed down by party insiders or assumed through political connections. I believe voters should decide elections, not institutions or narratives created behind closed doors. That means earning every vote, engaging directly with communities across the state, and being accessible before and after Election Day.

Leadership is not about titles; it is about action. South Dakota needs a Senator who will stand firm in their principles, communicate honestly with voters, and never lose sight of who they represent. That is the standard I hold myself to, and that is the leadership I will bring to the United States Senate.
